

THOR Leathergroup

The leather type “Thor” is a semi-aniline ox hide with a natural grain and a coated surface.

More uniform hides are chosen for this type of leather. It has a largely uniform surface structure with some visible scars or other marks.

After aniline dyeing, a pigmentation coat is added to give perfect color uniformity.

Finally, a top coating is added to give the leather a protective layer.

This type of leather has a good touch and low breathability.

The advantages of “Thor” leather are that it requires low-maintenance and resists most stains and fading from sunlight.

CHS recommends this type of leather for homeowners who want a good balance between maintenance and comfort.
